satyagraha of Nagpur and Jabalpur occurred in 1923 spread over several months. It was triggered by the arrest of nationalist protesters demanding the right to hold the flag. The arrests caused an outcry across India.

Nationalist leaders such as Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, Jinnah, Bhai Chattravarti Rajagopalachari, Dr. Rajendra Prasad and Vinoba Bhave organized the revolt and thousands of people from different regions including as far south as the Princely state of Travancore traveled to Nagpur and other parts of the Central Provinces (now in Maharashtra and Madhya Pradesh) to participate in civil disobedience. In the end, the British negotiated an agreement with Patel and other leaders permitting the protesters to conduct their march unhindered and obtaining the release of all those arrested.

The national flag of a country embodies the hopes and aspirations of its citizens. During the freedom struggle flag satyagrahas were a common occurrence and saw large participation of the people.
